

PLAYWRIGHT'S VISION

This may not be your typical 'Enter' and 'Exit' Play. It's more of a Reader's Theatre kind of Skit that requires very little or no movements from the actors on the stage.

When the lights come up, everyone should already be in place. The Main Character (MC) is seated at Centre stage asking the main questions (BOLD). He/She can sit on the stage with the chair backrest facing forward so he/she can rest their arm/ chin on it as the questions are asked.

All the other characters (names not important) stand around the Main Character in strategic positions taking turns to answer the questions one piece at a time.

The SCRIPT
